IRELAND AND THE IRISH.

A Lecture Delivered by the Rev. Napoleon Mignault, at St. Titus Church, March 11th, 1866.

On that great and dreadful day of the Lord, when nations as well as individuals shall be placed at the bar of God to be judged according to their works, England will have an awful account to render of her stewardship. Her impoverished and down-trodden population within her borders, the crushed and the degraded millions whom she has enslaved in India, and the widows and orphans whom she has made throughout the world, in her reckless career of ambition, will all rise up in judgment against her. The nations of the civilized earth will stand up too, and will bear evidence to her hard-hearted and relentless avarice, to her utter disregard of the most solemn promises and treaties, to her all-grasping spirit of aggrandizement, and to her entire recklessness as to the means by which her ends were to be attained—and on that awful day of final reckoning, the voice of poor crushed and bleeding Ireland shall be heard pleading, with all the earnest eloquence of truth, that justice, swift and terrible, may at length fall on the head of that unnatural step dame, to whose wanton cruelty, griping avarice, and iron policy, she owes most of the wrongs which have weighed her down for centuries. What will England say, when all these terrible witnesses shall appear against her, and when the ghosts of her countless murdered victims shall glare at her with their fiery eye balls? What answer shall she give, when the long and dark roll of her iniquities toward Ireland, shall be unfolded before the judgment seat of the most just, omnipotent and all seeing God of heaven and earth? Will her diplomacy then profit her anything? No, no, the Lord will then tear from her brow the veil of hypocrisy which has so long concealed her hideous deformities. He will strip her of all disguise and exhibit her as she is before the assembled world. I deal not in declamation; I strongly appeal to unquestionable facts. But our business lies at present with Ireland—let us speak of Ireland—Ireland! How the very name thrills through the soul, and stirs the deepest fountains of its sympathy! How many mournful recollections does it not awaken! Who that has but one spark of generosity yet glowing in his bosom, has not felt his spirit burn within him at the sad rehearsal of Ireland's wrongs? Is there one man on the face of the earth who can hear that story unmoved? Is there one who has not shared, to a greater or less extent, in the tender feelings embodied in the following touching lines of Erin's sweetest, greatest poet:

"The stranger shall hear thy lament o'er his plains,
The sigh of thy harp shall be sent o'er the deep;
Till thy tyrants themselves as they hear thy chains
Shall pause o'er the songs of their captives and weep."

Though England has labored, for nearly two centuries, to destroy her nationality, yet is Ireland still a nation. She has not, it is true, a domestic legislature, and she enjoys not political independence; but she still has her national literature, her national poetry, her national eloquence, her national spirit, her national patriotism. She still lives, breathes, moves and acts as a nation. England may bow down—she cannot destroy her national character. Brute force may subdue the bodies—it cannot trammel the souls of Irishmen. If the spirit of Ireland could have been broken, seven centuries of the most galling oppression would have broken it; but, thank God, that spirit is still as buoyant, as elastic, as independent as ever. It hates oppression as much as it ever did; it kisses not the rod which scourges it; it cannot be won by bribery, nor conquered by physical force.

"Ireland," says an eminent American historian (Lester), "Ireland," says he, "has an existence as a nation. She has her universities and her literature. She is still the Emerald Isle of the ocean. An air of romance and chivalry is around her. Real heroes—the O'Neills, the O'Briens, and the Emmets—will be remembered as long as self-denying patriotism and unconquerable valor are honored among men. In every department of literature she still takes her place. Where is the wreath her Shamrock does not adorn? Where the nation that has not visited her hills? Her harp has ever kindled the soul of the warrior, and soothed the sorrows of the broken-hearted. Whatever vices may stain her people, they are free from the crime of voluntary servitude. The Irishman is the man last to be subdued. Possessing an elasticity of character that will rise under the heaviest oppression, he wants only a favorable opportunity and a single spark to set him in a blaze." Such is the language of that American gentleman, a Protestant and a son of the Pilgrims—of one who is as liberal in his opinions as he is fearless in the expression of them. Wide and expansive in his views, generous in his feelings, and truly American in his mind and heart, Mr. Lester seems wholly incapable of any narrow or unworthy prejudices. All nations and tribes and peoples are the same to him. He is a man, and nothing that is human is shut out from his sympathy. Wherever he finds wrong and injustice, his soul melts with compassion, and his spirit kindles with honest indignation against the oppressor. If he hates England, he furnishes abundant reasons for his hatred. If he sympathizes with Ireland, he proves that Ireland is worthy of sympathy. His view of Ireland under English oppression is one of the most eloquent and conclusive essays I have ever chanced to read. I fervently wish that every American had his honest independence and his generous feelings. I wish that every American were as true to the letter and to the spirit of our noble Constitution, and to the principles embodied in our Declaration of Independence.

But, alas! such is not the case. Disguise the fact as you may, there exists in the minds of a large portion of our population a secret instinctive, indefinable hatred of Ireland, and contempt of everything Irish; our political harangues and fourth of July orations are high sounding and comprehensive enough; they abound in withering denunciations of tyranny and of tyrants, and are well garnished with expressions of sympathy for the victims of oppression. But the sufferings of poor Ireland under a most atrocious and grinding English oppression are often left out of the account.

We honestly boast of our independence, we sound forth the praises of our revolutionary Fathers who broke the trammels of English oppression, and bequeathed the rich inheritance of liberty to their descendants. But are we really independent of England? Have we entirely shaken off her yoke? Do we enjoy moral, religious and intellectual, as well as political freedom? or are we not the unconscious slaves of English prejudices? Are we not still the victims of her narrow-minded religious bigotry? Ladies and gentlemen, England still lords it over us, not by her armies, by her navies; but her spirit, her policy and her prejudices, political and religious. Especially are we indebted to her for our secret, though most un American hostility to foreigners. She has transmitted to us, as a fatal and poisoned heritage, her hereditary dislike of the French, too polite for them, and her intense hatred of the Irish. I cannot explain in any other way the prevalence of such a feeling among us; and that such a feeling does exist, I think no candid mind can deny.

We would feel doubly proud of our adopted country, could we think that the views of many among our people were more liberal and enlarged than sober truth proves them to be; and that our republic were really what it professes to be, the home of the exile, and asylum of the oppressed from every nation under the sun. A liberal policy in regard to Foreign immigration has contributed more, perhaps, than any other cause to make our nation what it is. The Foreigners, whom this policy has attracted to our shores, have not only swelled our own population, but they have greatly aided in enriching our country and in developing its resources. They have dug our canals, cleared our forests, tilled our lands, prepared our turnpikes and laid down our railroads. They are doing more than this. They have been and are still cheerfully enlisting in our army and navy, are gallantly fighting our battles and perilling their lives for the country of their adoption. They lie side by side with the natives in military cemeteries, their blood flows together and the sun sets on their common graves. They have expended their labor and treasure and have shed their blood for our benefit. They have entered into the spirit of our institutions and have labored to become identified with natives in feeling and interest. What more could be asked or expected from them? Yet it cannot be disguised that there is a growing spirit of hostility to foreigners silently but deeply at work among our people. This is more particularly the case in our Irish fellow citizens, especially those among them who still fondly cling to the much abused religion of their forefathers. The political bigots among us hate Irishmen, merely because they are Irishmen; our religious bigots hate them because they are Catholics. Both have inherited this hatred from England—the small politicians make capital out of this feeling. On the eve of elections, you find this class of men waxing wonderfully warm and sympathetic; they have Irishmen as brothers; they drop tears of compassion over the wrongs of Ireland; They are themselves Irish in feeling and heart; But the election has scarcely passed off, before their friendship has greatly cooled down if not vanished entirely. Thus are the Irish in America courted and kicked by turns. In the end, they get all the abuse and odium, and but little of the honors and emoluments. Is this treatment either generous or just? Do the Irish really deserve it? Is not the Irish character open, sincere and generous? Are not the Irish as a people, truthful, trustworthy, honest and patriotic? Have they not as a class much less selfishness than our own native population? Are there among them more sharpers and swindlers than among our own people? Who ever heard of an Irish coward, or of an Irish traitor in America? Who ever heard of an Irishman, through pusillanimity, shrinked from doing his duty to his adopted country? In our last struggle for independence, and in our present bloody war did not the Irish fight side by side with natives, animating them by their fearless bravery? Can Americans soon forget the glorious names of Montgomery and Barry, Sheridan, Mulligan and Corcoran, to say nothing of other illustrious Irishmen?

According to the sentiment expressed in a stanza of an old song, generosity to both friends and foes is a distinctive characteristic of Irishmen:

What flood reflects a shore so sweet
As glorious Boyne or pastial Ban;
Or who a friend or foe can meet,
So generous as an Irishman?

The warm-hearted kindness and hospitality of the Irish are proverbial. In them the social feeling predominates over every other sentiment.—Ireland is perhaps, the only country in the world which combines the warm temperament and generous feelings of the South with the cold climate of the North. An Irishman is one of the very best specimens of human nature. Elevated, chivalrous and refined, he is also warm-hearted, ready-witted, generous and affable. His soul is utterly incapable of one thought, a word or action, that is little or mean. He puts you at your ease and you feel entirely at home in his company. He forgets himself and thinks only of those whose society he enjoys. Faults the Irish have, but what people have no faults? But have they as many or as glaring ones as those who are loudest in condemning them? Let him that is without sin himself first cast a stone at his Irish brother. A portion of the poorer Irish in America have faults, some of them grevious and disgraceful; but where and from whom did many of them contract their faults? Did they not, in many cases, learn them from the degraded portion of our own native population? Did not many of them contract habits of intemperance and of its cognate vices in consequence of the evil example set before them on our public works? Is it generous or right, first to taint them with vice and then to sneer at them for being vicious? I am not a native born citizen myself, though born on this continent, but I have had tolerably good opportunities for studying the moral character of the lower classes among our native and Irish population; and I am of the opinion that the Irish would not suffer at all in the comparison. The mode of thinking and of judging, adopted by some of our people is, indeed, singular enough. If an Irishman has been drunk or is heard to swear, immediately you hear sneers about the low "Irish"; but if an American is caught in the same vicious practices, it seems to create no surprise whatever and to be all a matter of course in this free country. This comes from that lurking prejudice to which I alluded above. I believe it was the Irish orator Sheils, who defined an Irishman. "A man who acts first and thinks afterwards;" at any rate there is much truth in the definition. But if an Irishman blunders occasionally, his blunders are of the head, never of the heart. If he have but little of the cool calculating foresight of the Yankee, he is also exempt from many of the worst traits of character in the Yankee. He may be less shrewd and less thrifty; but he is not for all this the more selfish or the less honest.—Avarice is not a natural growth of the Irish soil, and of all the vices in the whole catalogue, I believe there is not one which tends more to contract the heart and to dry up the fountains of benevolence. Give us any other national vice rather than this.

I am not to be understood as implying that all or even the more enlightened and better portion of our population are infected with this unworthy prejudice against the Irish. Many of our greatest men and most enlightened statesmen, the great, great majority of the native American population of Titusville, are far elevated above this feeling. Witness your generous donations toward our church, school, and your kind patronage this evening. Americans of Titusville, you take a wider and more expansive view of human nature. Elevated, chivalrous and refined, you soar up to regions of higher philosophy and purer philanthropy; your souls are too enlarged for any such narrow prejudice. You are Americans in the true and most comprehensive sense of the term; you appreciate excellence wherever you find it; you look more to the man himself than to the mere accident which gave him birth in a particular country. May God bless you for it, citizens of Titusville. May peace and happiness and plenty of oil ever exist in your land.

Now a word for the Irish at home. I cannot attempt to go into lengthy details concerning the sufferings of Ireland under English misrule. The recital would fill volumes, and it has filled some of the most eloquent volumes that ever were written. The sad story is familiar to most of my hearers. There is not one generous heart in the civilized world which it has not touched in its tenderest chords and stirred to its very centre. Oft has the poor exile from Erin, as he wandered a stranger in some distant and unenergenial clime, sat down and wept, when he remembered how the beautiful island of his birth has been marred and made desolate by the hand of the oppressor; even as the captive Israelite of old once wept on the waters of Babylon, at the remembrance of the beloved Sion from which the arm of violence had rudely torn him, and whose glories had been scattered by the hand of the spoiler. It was a sad day for Ireland when the Saxon first set foot on her green and lovely soil. It was for her the beginning of all sorrows. Saxon misrule, continued through long centuries, has strewn her surface with ruin and desolation, in the midst of which a poor, miserable, starving peasantry, the children of the former lords of the soil, subsist and move about, like spectres through desolate and abandoned cities. There is no crime, there is no enormity which England has not committed toward Ireland.

In speaking of English tyranny over the Irish people, we cannot find language strong enough to paint the sober reality, exaggeration is entirely out of the question. Her treatment of Ireland, both in war and in peace, find no parallel in that of the most rebellious and least favored of her provinces by pagan Rome herself, while in the height of her prosperity and in the full tide of her all-conquering and rapacious career. The penal code which England adopted for the government of Ireland, would have disgraced the statute book of the Grand Turk himself! Adroit diplomacy, low intrigue, base selfishness, insatiate rapacity, open treachery, high handed spoliation and robbery, cold blooded cruelty and persecution, and downright murder and butchery, have ever marked the policy of England toward Ireland, and exhibited to all the world the tender mercies of the English Government towards its Irish subjects. The American historian, Mr. Lester says: that the degradation and servitude of Ireland are directly chargeable on England, that British cupidity and British pride have been the Alpha and Omega of Irish suffering. The first period of Irish suffering under English oppression extends from the first invasion of Ireland by Richard Strongbow in the year 1168, to the time of the reformation so-called, and embraces nearly four hundred years. It is marked by a fierce border war between the native Irish and the English invaders of the country. Ireland had never before worn a foreign yoke. The Roman Eagles had never floated over the heads of her children. She was as free as the air of her own mountains; treas the strains of her own national harp. She had tasted the sweets of liberty too long to submit to the English yoke. For more than four hundred years she sustained the unequal contest with her conquerors, nor did she yield one inch of he territory without a death struggle.

More than once were the Irish race on the point of finally trampling and expelling the English from their borders, when some unhappy division in their own ranks, or some other event, suddenly inclined the scale of victory in favor of England. But though overcome by superior force and tactics, yet did she never consent willingly to wear the fetters with which she was bound. Though down-trodden and a captive, her spirit was not broken, and she still cherishes visions of freedom. Outlawed in their own country and hunted down by their enemies after having been despoiled of their property, did the native Irish seek to fly from their homes and eke out a subsistence in some more genial abode on the continent. Even this mode of escape was precluded by the inhuman English law, which forbade the Irish from leaving the country. But more and still worse than all this: a mark was set on these same Irish enemies, that any one who was base and cruel enough to perpetuate the atrocious crime, might murder any Irishman with impunity wherever he might be found! To this unheard of and almost incredible wantonness of cruelty, I have the authority of the English statute book itself, and the express testimony of the Scotch Protestant historian, Sir James McIntosh. He says: "During the dreadful period of four hundred years, the laws of the English government of Ireland did not punish the murder of an Irishman as a crime." I really believe that the history of no nation on earth is stained with cruelty more wanton and refined than this.

But sad and mournful as is the epoch of Irish

VERY LATEST NEWS.

THE HOUSE RECONSIDERS ITS VOTE ON THE LOAN BILL.

NEW YORK MONEY AND STOCK MARKET.

DISCOVERY OF A BAND OF LETTER THIEVES IN NEW YORK.

PASSENGER STEAMERS RUNNING BETWEEN NEW YORK AND ALBANY.

WASHINGTON, March 19.

The House, by a vote of 81 against 67, have reconsidered the vote by which the Loan bill was rejected on Friday.

NEW YORK, March 19.

The stock market is rather hesitating under the uncertainty about the action of Congress upon the financial bill. The stocks under clique manifestations are very strong. The inquiry for Governments is less active. The miscellaneous list is dull. Coal stocks barely retain the improvement made at the close of last week.

There is a considerable activity in money, as is indicated by the fact that the exchanges at the Clearing House to-day amount to $108,000,000. The supply of money, however, is very abundant and brokers are readily supplied on call at 5 per cent. The transactions in discounts are steadily increasing and good firms find no difficulty in getting all the money they want at moderate rates. Very prime names are held at 6@6 1-2 per cent, but the most general rate for prime paper is 7@8 1-2 per cent. Good names are quoted at 8 @9 per cent; lower grades 10@15 per cent.

Gold continues weak, ranging during the day at 128 1-8 a 129.

Foreign exchange is still dull.

NEW YORK, March 19.

An organized band of letter thieves has been recently discovered by post office detectives in this city, and on Saturday last important arrests were made.

It is expected the new steamers St. John and Erastus Corning will go up the Hudson River to-night. A new vessel has been built for the People's line and named after Daniel Drew. It will be launched in a few days.

XXXIXth Congress--First Session.

HOUSE.—March 19

Mr. Elliott introduced a bill for the settlement of the accounts of certain public officers, which was read twice and referred to the Judiciary Committee

Mr. Kasson introduced a bill to amend the act of July 1st, 1862, for the construction of a railroad and telegraph line from the Missouri River to the Pacific Ocean, which was read twice and referred to the Committee on the Pacific Railroad

Mr. Bidwell, of Cal, introduced a bill to enable the State of California to reclaim the Dry and Steuta lands within the limits of that State, which was read twice and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. Miller, of Pa., offered a resolution in reference to printing 25,000 copies of the Agricultural Reports of 1864.

Mr. Washburn rose to debate the resolution and it went over.

Mr Windom, of Minn., introduceded a joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to pay certain claims out of the balance of an appropriation for the expense of Indian affairs in Utah Territory, which was read twice and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. Latham, of Iowa, introduced a bill in relation to the Guardian Society of the District of Columbia, which was read twice and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. Farnsworth, of Ill., introduced a joint resolution appropriating $20,000 for the survey of Rock River in Illinois, and was with reference to water communication between the Mississippi River and the great lakes, which was read twice and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr Kelsey, of Mo., introducing a bill to extend the provisions of the act for calling out volunteers to the 15th and 16th Regiments of Missouri Volunteer Cavalry, which was read twice and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. Van Horn, of Missouri, introduced a bill for the relief of loyal settlers on the public domain, which was read twice and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. Kelley, of Pennsylvania, introduced a bill relating to the currency of the United States, which was read twice and referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. Randall, of Pennsylvania, introduced a resolution declaring that, in the opinion of the House of Representatives, the Representatives from the late rebel States who can take the required oath are, under existing law, entitled to their seats and should be admitted as members of the House.

The Speaker stated that under the order of the House the resolution should be referred to the Reconstruction Committee.

Mr. Randall not desiring the reference withdrew the resolution.

Mr. McCullough, of Md., introduced a resolution requiring the Secretary of War to furnish the House with a list of officers, volunteer and regular, employed in the Quartermaster's Department, and also why Corcoran's Art Building is still used by that Department.

Objection being made the resolution went over under the rule.

After a speech from Mr. Conklin, the previous question was seconded and the bill was recommitted, without instructions, to the Committee on Ways and Means.

SENATE—March 19.

Mr. Sumner presented the petition of citizens of New York earnestly asking that no State that rebelled shall be admitted as a governing partner into the Union without adequate security for the future. Referred to the Committee on Reconstruction.

Sumner also presented the petition of citizens of Jefferson county, Pa., asking for an amendment to the Constitution prohibiting any State from making distinction in civil rights among the naturalized citizens of the United States or among persons born on American soil on account of race or color. Referred to the Committee on Reconstruction.

Mr. Sumner presented two petitions in favor of an international copyright law, which were referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. Wade presented a petition from Ohio wool growers asking for an increase of duty on imported wool, which was referred to the Committee on Finance

Mr. Wilson presented a petition to increase the pay of army officers, which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. Wilson presented the petition of several colored men, who represent that they were once the slaves of Geo. W. Custis, who in his will freed them and provided for their support from the property left by him They ask that a portion of Arlington Heights be set aside for their benefit. The petition was referred to the Committee on Judiciary.

Mr. Wilson, from the Military Committee, reported the bill to establish a home for totally disabled soldiers and sailors of the United States, with a recommendation that certain amendments of the House be concurred in. The amendments strike out the provisions with regard to seamen and make them applicable to soldiers only. The House amendments were concurred in, and the bill now goes to the President for his signature.

Mr. Fessenden rose to a personal explanation He found in the National Intelligencer of the 17th inst., a letter from W. A. Graham, a claimant for a seat in the Senate from N. C., in reply to his (Fessenden's) remarks of a few days ago, concerning the nature of the investigation carried on by the Committee of Fifteen. This letter of Mr. Graham's was intended to convey the impression that the investigations were not impartial. Mr. Grahams had written to him (Fessenden) making two requests, one that witnesses suggested by him (Graham) should be examined, and another that the Representatives and Senators from the Southern States should be allowed to be present to cross-examine witnesses. The last request was not complied with because it was not customary in cases of investigations by a committee, and because the proceedings of the Committee were not in the nature of a criminal investigation, where cross-examinations were necessary. He (Fessenden) did not regard the lately rebellious States in the light of criminals on trial, nor was he acting in the capacity of prosecutor. The error of Mr. Graham was his belief that the testimony had closed because it had been ordered to be printed. It had not closed, except in the case of Tenn. In the case of North Carolina no testimony had yet been printed, it all being in the hands of Mr. Howard, of Michigan, now absent on account of domestic affliction.

Mr. Davis, in reply to Mr. Fessenden, advocated the right of the claimants for seats as Southern Senators and Representatives to be present and cross-examine witnesses. Mr. Davis proceeded to read Mr. Graham's statement.—Having read for half an hour he was called to order by Mr. Chandler, who insisted that there was no question before the Senate.

Mr. Fessenden said it had yielded to Mr. Davis for him to read Mr. Graham's letter, but it was evident now that he was reading the editorials and news columns of the paper.

Mr. Davis said that he was reading an explanation of the case by Mayor Lawrence.

At the conclusion of Mr. Davis' reading, Mr. Fessenden rose to say that if Mr. Graham desired to introduce further testimony in the case of North Carolina he could do so

Mr. Wilson introduced a bill to provide for the equalization of the bounties to soldiers in the late war of the rebellion.

Predictions.

The following prophecies were made concerning the coming year. Some of them have already been fulfilled:

The year 1866 will be a very eventful one to every maiden who gets married

Throughout the whole course of the year whenever the moon wanes the nights will grow dark.

If dandies wear their beards, there will be less work for the barbers He who wears his moustache will have something to sneeze at.

Whoever is in love this year will think his mistress an angel. Whoever gets married will find out whether it is true.

He that loses his hair this year will grow bald.

He that loses his wife this year will become a widower.

If a young lady should happen to blush she will be red in the face. If she dreams of a young man three nights in succession it is a sign of something. If she dreams of him four times, or has a toothache, it is ten to one that she is a long time in getting either of them out of her head.

If anybody jumps overboard without knowing how to swim, it is ten to one that he gets drowned

If any one lends an umbrella, it is ten to one that he is obliged to go home in the rain for his pains.

Whoever runs in debt this year will be dunned.

Many an old sinner will resolve to turn over a new leaf, but the new leaf will turn out a blank.

It is probable that if there is no business doing, people will complain of hard times, but it is certain that those who hang themselves will escape starving to death.

He that bites off his nose or turns politician, will act like a fool, and this is the most certain of all.

Wm. Reynolds was chosen Mayor of Meadville on Friday last.

The spotted fever, which has prevailed to some extent in Union Mills and vicinity, has now altogether subsided.

A Daily Newspaper for Sale.—The proprietors of the Pithole city Record advertise the paper, type, presses and materials for sale.

On our first page will be found the eloquent address delivered by the Rev. N. Mignault, on Saturday evening. It will amply repay perusal.

It was the Citizen Engine company that appeared in the procession on Saturday. They wore their new uniforms and presented a very creditable appearance.

The passenger trains of the P. & E. R. R. now stop at the new depot of the A. & G. W. R. R. in Corry. A new platform is being constructed on the north side of the depot, for this purpose.

The alarm of fire last evening was caused by the fall of an incendiary tin chimney in a small tenement on Pine street. The fire was extinguished by hand and the excitement soon subsided.

The Reciprocity treaty with Canada expired on Saturday. It is thought it will materially injure the agricultural interests of Canada. The right of fishing in British waters also terminates with the treaty.

Culver Literary Association.—A business meeting of the Culver Literary Association will be held this evening, to take the necessary steps for procuring a library. All the members are particularly requested to be present.

The Sanitary measures adopted by the late borough Council has been very effectively carried out, so far as the removal of carcasses is concerned. Fifty dead horses have been hauled away and burned and forty-five buried. Ten other carcasses, which had lodged in the creek, were carried away by the last freshet.

Bogus News.—The New York Herald states that General Lewis, of General Sweeny's staff, has received advices of a grave and significant character from the Pennsylvania mining regions. Companies of infantry and cavalry are cropping up thick as mushrooms. "Sappers and miners" are prepared at a moment's notice to issue forth and lay siege to the works of the enemy.

Stonehouse Jack has turned up at Pithole City, where he has established himself in business as the keeper of "the old Free and Easy," on First street. On Saturday he was brought before Justice Highberger, charged with administering drugged liquor to one of the girls employed as dancers. A jury trial was had and the defendant discharged on the payment of half the costs, the complainant paying the remainder.

Election in Oil Creek Township.—At the election for Township officers, March 19th, the following was the result:

Oliver N. Thompson, Justice of Peace; William Kerr, Judge of Election; Peter T. Ridgway, Constable; S. H. McGinnett and Martin B. Gibson, Inspectors; Hugh St. Clair and A. J. Kerr, Supervisors; Noah Ross and A. T. Sherger, School Directors; Samuel Curry, Assessor; Samuel Curry, Township Clerk; Samuel Curry, Township Treasurer; Thomas Gibson, Township Auditor.

The war of the railroads is at last ended, at least so far as concerned the Warren & Franklin and Pithole & Oil City roads. The latter has laid its track from Oleopolis to Oil City, and on Saturday the train ran through, between the latter place and Oil City, and on Monday, regular connections were made with the A. & G. W. R. R., whose trains ran up into the borough in the rear of the Petroleum House. The bridge across the creek, however, will not be completed for several weeks, so that passengers have to foot it from one side of the creek to the other.

Destructive Fire in Buffalo—Central Railroad Freight House and Elevator Burned.—About six o'clock Saturday morning the Central Railroad Freight House, on Ohio street, Buffalo, was set on fire by the explosion of a lamp containing kerosene oil, and in a very short space of time the entire structure was destroyed, together with ten or twelve loaded cars, and a considerable quantity of freight. The flames extended to the large elevator of the Company in close proximity which was entirely destroyed. The total loss from the fire will be upwards, it is said, of $1,000,000.

Local Legislation.—A bill has been passed in the Legislature authorizing Justices of the Peace and Notaries Public in the county of Crawford, to hold the office of Burgess or Mayor.—Under this act Mayor Angier will retain the office of Notary Public.

Mr. Sturtevant has presented a petition of members of the bar of Crawford county, for the passage of a law creating a new judicial district out of the counties of Venango and Crawford.

Also, one from citizens of Crawford county, for an increase of the rate of interest.

Also, one from citizens of Crawford and Erie counties, asking the formation of an independent school district.

The Large Flowing Well on Bennehoff Farm.—The Philadelphia Well No. 2, on lease 22, Bennehoff Run Petroleum Company, was tubed on the 13th, and on Wednesday the pump was started. A few moments only elapsed until the water was partially exhausted so that she commenced throwing gas and oil with great force. She increased to all the valves would pass, about 200 barrels per day, and on Saturday the valves were drawn and she commenced flowing with such force that the oil was thrown some fifteen feet above the top of the derrick, since which time she has continued to increase and is now flowing about 800 barrels per day. The successful parties owning the working interest of this lease, also part of 23, are the Petroleum Mining Company of Penn'a, a private organization composed of only twenty gentlemen—Philadelphians. Mr. H. W. Fancett has the superintendence who also has an equal interest.

The Drama—Rouse's Dramatic Company—"The Hidden Hand" To-Night.—Last evening this brilliant and popular troupe reappeared in Corinthian Hall, after a somewhat protracted absence, and were greeted with an appreciative and well packed audience. The piece selected for the opening performance was "The Forty Thieves," dramatized from the "Arabian Nights." It was rendered with excellent effect and elicited very enthusiastic applause.

To night Mrs. Southworth's popular production, entitled "The Hidden Hand," which originally appeared in the New York Ledger, will be presented in the new dramatic version. It has had an immense run wherever performed by this company. Various new features and incidents characterize the new version, and Mr. Rouse's trick dog "Romeo," enacts his part with surprising effectiveness.

There is no question but what this company is far superior to any who have previously visited Titusville. The performances are invariably chaste, and nothing transpires upon the stage that could shock the sensibilities of the most fastidious or critical spectator. It is the intention of the manager to establish himself permanently in Titusville, if suitable degree of appre-

The School House Question.

Editors Morning Herald:

The project advocated in the Herald a few days ago, over the signature of "Tax-Payer," for lightening the burdens of our citizens, would if carried into effect, increase the evil which it is intended to remedy. Let us examine in detail. Tax-Payer thinks a temporary shanty in each ward could be put up for fifteen hundred dollars, making a total of six thousand.

Projectors have always been proverbial for underestimating the cost of their schemes, and this one is certainly no exception to the rule. Every builder of experience knows well that such a structure as he describes, cannot be provided for the reception of pupils at less than two thousand dollars; then as each school-house will necessarily occupy a central location in the ward, we have the ground rent, which we may venture to put down at a handsome figure, even with the present downcast tendency of real estate.

It is hardly necessary to point out that the number of teachers which would be sufficient for one central school would be found totally inadequate, when distributed among four separate establishments; supposing the divisions and sub-divisions of classes to be the same as heretofore; and I do not see how they could be changed without impairing the efficiency of the system. And unless we are willing to lower the standard of education, each staff of teachers would require to be headed by a superintendent, whose salary would in all probability amount to no less than twelve or fifteen hundred dollars per annum.

Perhaps it is hardly worth while to mention the addition to the number of stoves or heaters, and the amount of fuel which such an arrangement would necessitate; nevertheless, all these extras swell the gross expenditure of the first year up to fourteen or fifteen thousand dollars; a sum which would go far towards building a substantial brick edifice; one that would be an ornament to the city, and an honor to the public spirit of the citizens.

But "Tax Payer" offers us the alternative of continuing these make-shifts as common schools preparatory to a Central High School. This is economy with a vengeance. In his anxiety to escape the Scylla of taxation, he rushes on the Charybdis of wastefulness. Does he not know, that his hastily constructed shanties would soon have to be reconstructed; to say nothing of the cost of keeping up five educational establishments, in a city of less than ten thousand inhabitants.

To the objection of waiting until a brick building can be erected, I would answer by informing "Tax Payer" that the school is now in operation, and that there is nothing to prevent its continuance until the completion of the proposed edifice.

I must confess, that on first perusing his very sagacious plan, I thought it the interested scheme of some unfortunate land speculator; who had purchased wildly during the late excitement, and now found himself with unsaleable lots on his hands in each ward, which he wished to palm off on the inexperience of our bran new city officials, in order to retrieve his sinking fortunes.

It is fair to presume, however, that "Tax Payer" is guilty of nothing worse than a gross error of judgment.

The Same Subject.

Editors Morning Herald:

I notice advertisements in the Morning Herald for proposals for building a public School House in Titusville, on the old site, by authority of the School Board and signed C. M. Allen, Secretary. This notice is undoubtedly what caused the sensibility of "Tax-payer" on the subject.—There is more of this than appears on the surface, and if the accidental board now officiating and having no legitimate constituency persist in driving this matter to such extremes in such hot haste, it will have a tendency to create such a feeling and produce such results as will be anything but profitable to the educational interests of our city.

The present board is to some extent self-constituted, and perhaps with a view to accomplish some purpose that the proper representatives of the people do not contemplate, and if they should enter into improper contracts for them in their present condition, the representatives of the people when they enter upon the duties of office will correct the evil. The city is now divided into wards, and each ward will have its representatives in the board of contractors, and the representatives of each ward will decide for themselves whether they will have their houses in their respective wards or whether they will have them all in the Second ward, and if the present incumbents wish to forestall these rights for two months, the time will come when the proper representatives of the people will determine this matter, and if they desire to have houses in the different wards they will have them.

Therefore, if the present incumbents are discreet men they will await the action of the proper representatives of the people. The present directors are required by law to make and publish a statement of their receipts and expenditures the last year. Will they do it? That is legitimate business for them. There is a large amount of money to account for. Will they make and publish it? We shall see.

Culver Literary Association.—Rev. J. J. Marks, D. D., is engaged to lecture before the Association Wednesday evening next. We can assure our readers that this lecture of the learned Doctor's is one of rare interest and decided instruction. Egypt was founded 2,200 years before Christ, and reached its culmination under Servatris, its wisest and greatest King, 1,000 years after. Greater works of internal improvements and of art were never undertaken or completed in any country, though not as much can be said of their utility. Egypt never arose to the dignity of a universal monarchy as did Assyria, Russia, Greece and Rome, but it held extended sway over parts of Africa and Asia. It was at one time almost the only home of science, literature and arts. In 1600 B. C., the alphabet (then only sixteen letters,) was taken to Greece. The science of Astronomy was better understood in the Land of the Nile than elsewhere in the world. The great works of the Egyptian Kings—the Pyramids—the Great Labyrinth, the artificial Lake Maeris, the Temples of Thebes, the wonderful Sphinx, all speak of a people whose history can never fail but to excite a deep interest for all time to come.

But perhaps the deepest source of attraction in Egyptian history arises from its intimate connection with the history of the Children of Israel. Abraham visited Egypt about 1900 years B. C., but returned to Mesopotamia. One hundred years or more later the envious brethren of Joseph sold him to traders from that country, and in a few years the whole family of Jacob, numbering seventy souls, took up their home in that country, and were assigned to the land of Goshen. How "another King arose who knew not Joseph," and oppressed the chosen race, how they suffered for 400 years, and then led by Moses, a mighty host, they sought the "Promised Land," how in years after they warred and made peace with the former oppressors, are matters that draw us with deepest interest. To know more of these things, to see what are indubitable proofs that the Egyptians were once a mighty people, and to see from their present condition how faithfully the prophecies have been fulfilled in their history, are matters that cannot but throw around this lecture of Dr. Marks great attractions. We urge every person who would spend an evening with pleasure and profit to attend on Wednesday evening.

Tax on Legacies.—The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has issued a circular concerning the assessment of tax on legacies, distribution shares and successions, as through failure of Assessors and Assistant Assessors to exercise due vigilance, much revenue justly due is not paid the government. When the whole amount of personal property of an estate payable in legacies or distribution exceeds the sum of $1,000 in actual value, the same is subject to duty or tax without regard to amount or value of each legacy or share; but when the amount does not exceed $1,000 no tax is chargeable.

A Vision.

For the Morning Herald.

Sitting on a towering hill-top,
Petroleum Centre overlooking,
Gazing down the far prospective,
Looking down upon the dwellings
Of the busy men of Oildom;
Pondering on the magic changes
A twilight upon the land beneath me,
Musing on the wealth enshrouded
In the barren hills around me,
Imaging great and glorious prospects,
For the young and growing city;
That lay spread in fair proportions
In the valley far below me;
Which with its enterprising spirits
In fact resembling form and feature,
Rising up in strength and grandeur,
Like a giant roused from slumber,
Throwing down the oily gauntlet
To her sister towns and cities;
And with trumpet-blast proclaiming
That she is now, at the present day
The place to live at and make it pay;
Queen City of Petrolia.

As thus was sitting, musing,
Lulled by sound of "Oceana's" war;
Shaping wild and wayward fancies,
Into tangible reflections,
Forth there came from out the background,
From the dark and misty shadows,
An aged form with snow-white hair,
And deeply traced were the lines of care
Upon his lanky, furrowed brow.
The light that shown from out his eye
Was not "the light of other days;
For once a warrior's fire had burned
In that now dull and saddened orb,
With footstep sure he oft before
Had chased the deer o'er hill and valley;
Had, when that budding town now stands,
Oft played and fondled with his children;
Had, with his followers, worshipped fire,
Down in the depths of yonder valley.

He was a Seneca Indian Chief,
With many snows upon his head,
Like some old tree whose top was dead
But showed beneath some foliage;
And now he'd journeyed many miles
Once more, and sure 'twould be the last,
To look upon his childhood's home,
To gaze upon the magic change
Wrought by the pale-face—avaricious,
Changes which are never ceasing,
But will continue to go onward
'Till the Indian has no foothold
In the land of his forefathers.

Totally he ignored my presence,
Never deigned me look or answer,
Kept his eye fixed on the moving panorama
That lay spread around beneath him,
Until with looking satiated
Took he for his guide and centre
A spot near unto which I lay;
When describing many circles,
With many a noisy incantation,
Thrice he struck upon the centre,
Of the mystic circle he had formed.

First I heard a distant noise
Like the muttering of thunder;
Louder it became and louder,
'Till the whole earth seemed to tremble
With some coming hidden power.
Much I wondered what it could mean,
Possibly he'd "struck a vein"
Still the noise seemed increasing,
Never ceasing, never ceasing!
Turned I then for explanation
Toward the spot where stood the chieftain,
And in turning I awakened;
It had only been a dream,
And I had been aroused
By the—blowing off of steam!

Common Council.

The New Burgess and Borough Councilmen were organized last evening at the office of E. M. Allen. Old Council present—F. W. Ames, Burgess; Councilmen Abbott, Ostrom and Canfield.

New Council—J. N. Angier, Burgess; Councilmen Ostrom, Smith, Bryan and Canfield.

F. W. Ames, previous to going out of office, said he would recommend to the incoming administration that they take some action in regard to Mr. J. M. Allen, who was elected Borough Treasurer two years ago, and has filled that position without compensation ever since. All the money had not passed into his hands, but if it had he thought two per cent would be sufficient, but as it had not he thought that five per cent. was not too much.

Clerk McAllister then swore J. N. Angier into office as Burgess under last Borough election, and he took the Chair.

It was voted that the bill of John Golding for half a month's police service, $40, be ordered paid.

On motion the bill of S. Hinkly for burying a dead horse $8, was also ordered paid.

It was then moved and seconded that John M. Allen, be allowed 5 per cent on all moneys which have passed through his hands as borough Treasurer for the last two years. Passed.

Mr. Henry Baldwin made a complaint to the Council against certain parties for leaving dead horses and throwing offal from the slaughter houses on the outskirts of the city limits. After considerable discussion, it was decided that the proper course to pursue would be for Mr. Baldwin to make complaint before a Justice of the Peace to have the nuisance abated.

The following bills were presented and ordered paid:

Bill of Wilson & Co., for painting engine house, $26,75.

Bill of P. T. Witherop, for repairs done in engine house, $80,70.

Bill of F. H. Eddy & Co., for stoves and labor done on engine house, $80,75.

Bill of Mr. L. Kerr, for lumber delivered to Borough, $816,97.

Moved and seconded that B. S. McAllister be allowed $150 for his services as clerk and attorney, office room, stationary, lights, &c., for the Borough of Titusville, for the year 1865. Carried.

Councilman Ostrom said that a man by the name of Brown had met with an accident by falling from a loose plank between the sidewalk and the street into the ditch, on the corner of Martin and Main streets, and that he threatened to sue the Borough for damages, and it would be necessary to take legal advice on the subject.

Mr. McAllister being called upon, recommended that Mr. Brown be required to bring proof in regard to injuries.

Mr. Ostrom then asked Mr. Allen if he had any objection to remain on as Street Commissioner until the city officers met on the 2d of April.

Mr. Allen said that if it was any accommodation to the council he had no objection.

It was moved and seconded, that M. B. McManis be allowed to build a bridge over Mill Race, on Martin street, below Water street, under superintendence of Street Commissioners. Carried. Passed.

The following Committees were appointed by Burgess Angier until the 2nd of April.

Finance.—C. H. Smith, A. R. Williams.

Streets and Bridges.—Isaac Canfield, J. Strouse.

Police.—H. B. Ostrom, John Bryan.

Fire Engines.—John Bryan, H. B. Ostrom.

Sanitary.—A. R. Williams, C. H. Smith.

The Council then adjourned until next Monday evening.

Pithole Wells.

The Record of yesterday has the following:

Rooker Farm.—No. 3, Tuna Lease, is gusing finely and getting some oil. She has been testing for about a week past.

No. 14 is pumping oil and water at a pretty rate—about half of each; is likely to do better on completely exhausted water. Has been testing only a week.

No. 15, Fred Pratt Well, is drawing tubing for the purpose of casing.

No. 100, is still testing, has been for some time, and continues to improve.

No. 3, Williams Reserve, is estimated to be yielding from 30 to 35 barrels per day.

No. 10 is producing about 15 or 20 barrels per day.

Hyner Farm.—No. 1, Lockwood lease, commenced testing at a depth of 740 feet on Thursday last, and after a few hours pumping brought a little oil, and has been gaining rapidly since. Yesterday afternoon she was pumping finely, throwing oil with great force at intervals, and gasing largely. Altogether the indications are as promising as any we have observed for a long time. This well is about one hundred and fifty yards east of the Bonta House.

No. 2, same lease, has just struck the fourth sand rock at a depth of 720 feet, when she unfortunately got tools fast—they are being removed however. Several other wells in the vicinity of No. 1 and 2 are down 400 feet and upward—one of them 560 feet deep.

Thomas Holmden Farm.—No. 123 commenced testing a few days ago. She gives some good indications. No. 127 on one side of her, and No. 129 on the other, are both good pumping wells.

Morey Farm.—No. 134 still continues to maintain her reputation as the best well on the creek. We notice several twelve-hundred barrel tanks have lately been erected for the more convenient storage of the oil.

No. 1, new Rice Well, which we mentioned a few days since as the latest "big strike," was doing splendidly yesterday, throwing, almost continually, nearly the full volume of the pipe.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

FINANCIAL.

New York, March 17.

Money continues very abundant on the Stock Exchange at six per cent, and at five upon government collaterals. First class commercial paper passes freely at 7@8 per cent.

The gold market has been heavy. The price weakening from 131 at the opening to 130¼ at the close. The "short" interest is large, and consequently there is a borrowing demand fully equal to the supply of coin for delivery. Speculation in the "room" is still almost wholly on the "bear" side.

Foreign exchange was very dull, and rates suffered a further decline. Late in the afternoon bankers' bills on England at sixty days were quoted at 107¾@¾, short sight 108¾, commercial 106¾@107¼. Bills on France at sixty days were rated at 5f. 23¾@5f. 28¾, short sight 5f. 18¾@5f. 20.

Petroleum and mining stocks continue active but variable. At the first board Bennehoff Run closed 20c. lower than at the same time yesterday, Pithole Creek 60c; Shade River 10c, United States 30c, Benton 20c, Consolidated Gregory Gold 75c, Gunnell Gold 10c, Quartz Hill $1 20, Smith and Parmlee 80c, Excelsior Copper 15b, Excelsior was 20c higher, New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore 10c Copake from 15c. At the second board Bennehoff Run closed 35c higher that at the first board, selling at $15 65, Central 10c, selling at $3, Pithole Creek 20c, selling at 5 25, Atlantic and Pacific $4 25, United States was 20c lower, selling at $15 75. Quartz Hill $1 10, selling at $3 40. Excelsior sold at $1 90, New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore 65c, Homowack $3 90, Shade River $15 75, Benton $2 05, Bobtail $5 25, Consolidated Gregory Gold $22 25, Corydon $2 05, Downeville Gold 45c, Hulman Gold 60c, Texas $14, Smith and Parmlee $10 85.

PETROLEUM MARKETS.

Titusville, March 19.

The petroleum markets remain "in statu quo." There is no oil of any consequence coming this way, the receipts on Saturday being only 35 bbls, and there were no shipments.

The cause of this may be attributed partly to the bad condition of the roads, but we have seen oil pour in here at the rate of 1,000 bbls per day, over much worse roads than we have at present.

There is a much more powerful reason why Titusville does not receive its regular portion of oil. While we have been making accurate calculations as to the lowest price which teams can haul oil over bad roads, and as to how much it costs to feed and shoe mules, our enterprising neighbors at Miller Farm, Shaffer, Henry's Bend and Oleopolis have been putting all their brains and capital into pipes, and the consequence is that they have driven our teams from the market and compelled some of our shippers to ship their oil from Shaffer and Miller Farm.

The Titusville and Pithole pipes will soon be in operation, and will of course effect a decided change in this respect. The tanks are completed at both ends of the route, and as soon as the weather moderates the transportation of oil will begin.

The necessity for cheap transportation is becoming more apparent every day. The pipe era is now dawning upon us, and before many months we shall have no cause to complain in this respect.

The railroad transportation requires to be attended to. The Atlantic and Great Western have reduced their tariff very considerably. The O. C. R. R., however, shows no disposition to move in this respect. They will be compelled to do so before long, or it may become necessary to lay pipes to Corry. The cost of transportation by pipes from this city to Corry would be about 10c per bbl.

An old man sat in his chair one day,
And sadly mused on life's decay,
For his thin and scattered locks were gray
With time and sorrow's changing sway,
And his life declined as the setting sun.

He had dug for gold on the western hill,
He had dug for oil at Titusville,
'Till the wealth of each his purse did fill,
But his hair was growing gray or still,
And the sands of his seemed almost run.

The old man sits in his chair to-day,
But the aged look has passed away;
And his tresses, once so thin and gray,
A dark luxuriance now display—

[illegible]

...history of which I have hitherto spoken; heart-rending and sickening as are its details; that period at which we must now rapidly glance is yet more afflicting and is filled with still greater [illegible]. This might seem impossible, but it is even so. From the reformation, so called, down to the present time, a new and more exciting element has been infused into the political hatred which England had ever bore to Ireland. This new and bitter ingredient in the chalice of Irish suffering, was a fierce and relentless religious bigotry. England had crushed the bodies, she now sought to bow down or crush the souls of Irishmen. Bribes and menaces, the sword and the bayonet, the rack and the gibbet, were successfully employed for this purpose. But they were all unavailing. The great body of the Irish people still fondly clung to the faith of their forefathers. They might be despoiled of their property, they might be branded as aliens and outlaws in the heart of their own dear country, they might suffer the death of traitors, or they might be massacred in cold blood; but no indignities or suffering could tear from their hearts the bright jewel of faith which they so highly prized and so dearly cherished. They might lose all else, but they would still warmly press this treasure to their bosoms. No! No! Ireland would not apostalize.

The annals of no country in the wide world, whether christian or pagan, can present anything half so cruel or atrocious, as that which is unfolded in the persecutions of the Irish Catholics by the English Government since the period of the reformation. The facts almost stagger belief. What are we to think of a penal code, which forbade Catholics to open schools for the education of their children; which set a price upon the heads of Irish priests, and hunted them down like wild beasts; which double taxed, ground down with unheard of extortions, and openly despoiled the Catholics of their property; which authorized the apostate son to drive his gray-headed father from the paternal roof, if he refused to turn Protestant in his old age? What are we to think of a policy, which necessarily induced ignorance and poverty, and then sneered at both? But what are we to think of a system of legislation which forbade a Catholic to own a horse worth more than five pounds, and authorized his Protestant neighbor to rob him of it by law, if he could prove before a justice of the peace that he had tendered five pounds for the animal and been refused? But listen to a passage of Lord Brougham:

"The Irishman is taxed for everything that enters his mouth, covers his back, or is placed under his feet; taxes are imposed on everything that is pleasant to see, hear, feel, taste or smell; taxes upon warmth, light or locomotion; taxes upon everything on the earth, in the waters, and under the earth; taxes upon everything that comes from abroad or is grown at home; taxes upon the sauce that pampers man's appetite and on the drugs that restore him to health; on the ermine that decorates the judge and on the rope that hangs the criminal; on the brass nails of the coffin, and on the ribbons of the bride; the school-boy whirls his taxed top; the beardless youth manages his taxed bridle on a taxed road; and the dying Irishman pouring his medicine which was taxed 7 per cent. into a spoon which also was taxed 30 per cent. throws himself back on his bed which was taxed 22 per cent.; and having made his will, the seals of which are taxed, expires in the hands of his surgeon who has paid one hundred pounds tax for the privilege of hastening him to the other world. His grave is taxed, his name is handed down to posterity on taxed marble; after which he is gathered to his fathers to be taxed—no more."

For almost two centuries immediately succeeding the Reformation, the history of Ireland is a monstrous recital of tragedies and sickening horrors, such as those just described. The same means were employed in each successive reign, and the same dreadful effects followed. After having filled Ireland with desolation and massacre, after having cut off most of its heroes, murdered most of its chiefs, and sent her vampires to seize on its richest lands, Elizabeth had a medal struck which bore the inscription "Pacata Hibernia." But Ireland was exhausted, not conquered; trodden in the dust, not pacified. I might fill a volume, with atrocities like these; but I sicken at details so revolting; and I must hasten on. All these atrocities culminated in the act of union. While Ireland lay crushed and bleeding at every pore, England annihilated her National Parliament. This master-stroke of Pitt's policy was "conceived in iniquity and brought forth in sin." It was the death blow of Irish independence and nationality. It laid Ireland prostrate at the feet of England. It permanently fastened the odious English ascendency on the necks of Irishmen. It marred the prosperity, crippled the commerce, ruined the manufacturers, weakened the energies and crushed the spirit of Ireland. It did more: it bound Ireland hand and foot, and placed her wholly at the mercy of an overwhelming majority in the English Parliament. It saddled on Ireland the enormous public debt of England. In a word, it enriched England at the expense of Ireland, and it overspread the latter country with pauperism unutterable. The bill of Catholic Emancipation, reluctantly passed by the English Parliament in 1829, mitigated, somewhat, but it did not remove these crying evils. They still exist to an alarming extent, and in an ever-increasing magnitude. England still has her foot on the bosom of prostrate Ireland, and English iron still enters the soul and pierces the very vitals of Irishmen.

A word to you, Irishmen of America. You have come to this country for the purpose of avoiding British proscription and securing for yourselves and your children the blessings of liberty. You have left the dear old land of sorrow, the cold blooded tyranny of despotic landlordism, to spend your days in a land where abundant provision is made for the happiness of all; where plenty teems and hunger is never felt. Love America, your adopted country; love this glorious Republic, this young giant of nations; much more so, because now distracted and bleeding. Oh! may God bless you, America!

Still I hope you will forgive me if I remind you of the love you owe old Ireland. Green Erin's soil still yearns for you. Years have past since you left her dear shore. But you have not forgotten her long martyrdom—a thousand battles have spilt the blood of your brothers—it flowed for manhood, it flowed for honor, it flowed for liberty. Many battles yet may be fought, for Ireland must, aye, will, have liberty. God bless Ireland!

TO OIL MEN.

CARVER'S

DOUBLE ACTING

OIL PUMP.

This pump consists of two barrels, one within the other, and each having its separate valves and acting independently of the other. The action is

DOUBLE,

and as much oil is raised at the

DOWNWARD

as at the

UPWARD STROKE.

THE DOUBLE SET OF VALVES

allows the FREE ESCAPE of gas through one or the other of the barrels, without affecting the pumping and thus enables the pump to work without obstruction in wells where the common pump cannot be worked at all.

AN IMPROVED PISTON

of double the strength of the old one has been invented which will be supplied FREE to all parties using the old sliding valve in these pumps. These pumps have now been used on over one hundred wells, and we give below a few of the certificates we have received, and ask a careful perusal of the same.

TESTIMONIALS:

TITUSVILLE, Nov. 27, 1865.

Messrs. Burtis, Hart & Burrows:
I am now using Carver's Double Acting Oil Pump in a well belonging to the Pennsylvania Oil Co., and can pump more oil with less power than with the common pump, and without interruption from gas, breaking of sucker rods, &c. It is far superior to any other pump, in my estimation, for pumping oil, and gas does not effect its working. N. J. TOMPKINS,
Superintendent.

ELLESVILLE WELLS, Watson Flats, Oil Creek, Pa., Nov. 25, 1865.

Messrs. Burtis, Hart & Burrows.
I have used and been acquainted with the working Carver's Double Acting Oil Pump in our wells and in other wells during the past summer and fall. I consider this pump far superior to the pumps in common use in oil wells, and have no hesitation in saying that it will raise double the amount of fluid from a well with a given amount of steam than can be raised with a common pump. JOSEPH A. SCOTT,
Supt. Ross Farm

OFFICE OF ÆTNA OIL CO., Oil Creek, Pa., Nov. 27, 1865.

Messrs. Burtis, Hart & Burrows:
I have used in our wells and been acquainted with Carver's Double Acting Oil Pump for the last five months. In one of our wells it was impossible to work the common pump on account of the gas. Carver's pump worked without difficulty in this well. I think Carver's pump will pump twice as much oil as any other pump with the same amount of steam.
CHAS. LANING, Supt

UNION WELL, West Hickory Run, Pa., Nov. 24, 1865.

Messrs. Burtis, Hart & Burrows:
We pumped the Union Well, on West Hickory Run about twelve days with the pump ordinarily used in oil wells and could not obtain to exceed one barrel of oil per day. About the 25th of Sept. last we put one of Carver's Double Acting Petroleum Pumps into the well, and the quantity of oil was immediately increased, and the well is now producing 35 barrels per day.
T. M. FOSTER.

CHAMPION WELL, Pioneer Run, Oil Creek, Pa., Nov. 24, 1865.

Messrs. Burtis, Hart & Burrows:
This well was pumped about six weeks with the common working barrel, giving an average production of about 30 barrels per day. The gas in this well was so strong as to keep us idle about one half the time repairing sucker rods, walking beams &c. We then introduced Carver's Double Acting Petroleum Pump and pumped it eleven weeks without being detained for repairs, &c., to exceed two days in all. During this time the production of the well was brought up to an average of 70 barrels per day, and on some days 80 barrels. This pump worked without any interruption from gas.
GEO. C. BARTLETT, Supt.

KOBERT FARM, Petroleum Centre, Nov. 30, 1865

Messrs. Burtis, Hart & Burrows:
This is to certify that I commenced operating the McCray well, McCray Farm, about the first of April last, and after testing it for three months, in which time it was tubed over 50 times—ascertained that the best it would produce was ten barrels per day, not to exceed four days per week, being disabled by breakage of sucker rods and machinery, at least two days each week. I then put in one of Carver's Patent Double Acting Pump, which increased the daily yield within two weeks to 75 barrels per day, which is the present production per day. It is over two months since the sucker rods have been taken out or even the slightest breakage occurred. I have at present eight of these pumps in operation and would use no other N. H. PAYN, Supt.
For Dr. M. C. Egbert.

OFFICE OF THE MAPLE SHADE OIL CO., Oil Creek, Nov. 30, 1865.

Messrs. Burtis, Hart & Burrows:
We are using Carver's Pump in the Coquette and Potts wells, and propose to introduce them into all our wells, as we consider them to be the best pumps made for pumping oil, and will therefore use no others.
